In response to your tenth anniversary observance:

As a 79 year-old avid fan and attendee at University of Wisconsin football and hockey games, my macular degeneration prevented me from seeing the sports action until Jordy became available. Now with my Jordy, I am able to watch the action of the players from my distant seat in row 40 of the stadium – I can actually see the football and the hockey puck in action. What a wonderful improvement this has made in my enjoyment of sports! At home I can now watch television while seated at a comfortable distance and enjoy theater and ballet performances and other activities where I am seated at a distance from the stage. Being legally blind, my macular degeneration was totally frustrating until Jordy became available!

Respectfully submitted,
